* 1/2 chest is the measurement taken from the hoodie just under the armhole, from side seam to side seam when laid flat on a table.

*Hoodies are a form of outerwear and therefore designed with approximately 20cm of "wearing ease" so that the garment fits over other clothes when worn.

What Are The Differences Between Ladies/Kids & Men's?

Junior hoodies are shorter through the body length compared to the Adult sizes.

How To Use This Information?

There are 2 ways that you can use the information in these tables to help you decide which size hoodie you should order.

Firstly, you can take your chest measurement and find the nearest corresponding "to fit chest" measurement in red.

For example; my chest measurement is 95cm and I am an adult male

I would therefore refer to the Men's table and the closest "to fit chest" measurement is 94cm which means I would order an XS

NB. The "to fit chest" measurement is a guide only. Some people like a slimmer fitted hoodie and some like to wear them big and baggy. It is at your discretion whether you want to go by this standard of 20cm wearing ease.

Secondly, you can take an existing hoodie, windcheater or sweater that you like the fit of and find the relative corresponding size in the table above.

You can do this by:

- 1) Taking your favourite jumper, and lay it flat on a table.
- 2) Measure it from side seam to side seam just under the armhole seam to find its 1/2 garment chest measurement.
- 3) Use this measurement to find the closest half garment chest measurement from the table above and order the corresponding size.

Please measure and record this information accurately as there can be no exchanges made if the hoodie you ordered doesn't fit. Please do not guess or just copy the existing size marked on the garment tag at the back of their neck as different companies have different sizing specifications for their garments.
